TL;DR & Editorial Take

The US market rebounded on the back of a strong performance from the Dow Jones, which surged +0.46% to 51,947.25. The S&P 500 also saw a modest gain of +0.05% to 7,411.98, while the Nasdaq 100 fell -1.15% to 28,128.34. Key takeaways include:

- The 10Y yield dropped -0.51% to 4.68, indicating a potential shift in investor sentiment.
- Gold prices rose +0.57% to 4,090.60, suggesting a flight to safe-haven assets.
- The DXY fell -0.25% to 101.21, potentially indicating a weakening US dollar.

The market's rebound can be attributed to a combination of factors, including the strong performance of the Dow Jones and the decline in the 10Y yield. However, the drop in the Nasdaq 100 and the rise in gold prices suggest that investors remain cautious.

The editorial take is that the market is currently in a state of flux, with investors weighing the pros and cons of various asset classes. The decline in the 10Y yield and the rise in gold prices suggest that investors are seeking safe-haven assets, while the strong performance of the Dow Jones indicates that there is still appetite for riskier assets.
